

Happy last-seven-months! Yet another slow update, this time with almost nothing to report. Check inside for more!

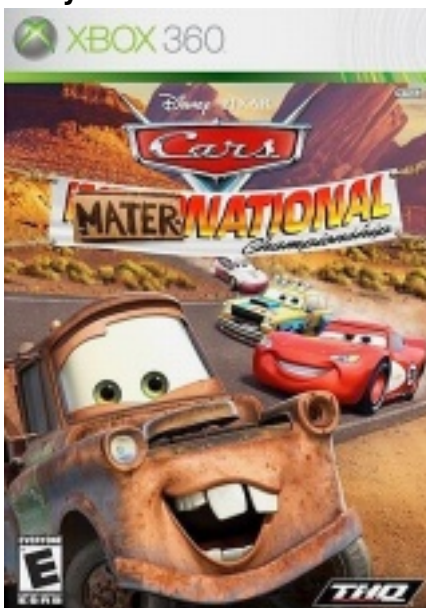

Just like last time, I've been rather busy with several other projects and real life activities. I've recently moved and just settled in, thus getting ready to play more on my Xbox. A few easy 1000 games have already been popped into my Xbox, and I anticipate to produce guides for them. If all goes well, a few should be released in near future. Who knew playing easy, but shitty games would become boring? ;-p

Oh, and if you tried to access the site during the past week and was met with 'Site down for maintenance', it was because I was doing some backend work; upgrading and installing. Everything should be in order now, but if you happen to stumble upon something, feel free to leave a message in the Bugs forum.

Even though it doesn't look like it, there have been a few updates the past few months:
